

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

RULES.

1.—That this Society be named “The Southampton Record Society.”

2.—That the objects of the Society be (1) to print and publish—subject to the consent and approval of the Mayor and Corporation—the more interesting and important of the Ancient Documents of the Borough ; (2) to prepare and publish other works, such as books of plans or collections of essays, calculated to elucidate the History of Southampton.

3.—That the Members of the Society consist of Patrons and Subscribers.

(a) Those persons shall be termed Patrons who contribute in advance One Guinea or more per annum. Such Patrons shall receive all the publications of the Society during the year free of charge.

(b) Those persons shall be termed Subscribers who contribute nothing in advance, but who agree to purchase at a special reduced rate all the publications of the Society for the year as they are issued, provided that such publications do not exceed in value One Guinea for any one year.

4.—That the Society's year commence on June 1st.

5.—That the affairs of the Society be managed by a Committee of not less than twenty members, among whom shall always be ex-officio the Mayor, the Ex-Mayor, the Sheriff, the Chairman of the Estates Committee, and the Town Clerk of Southampton.

6.—That the remainder of the Committee be elected at a General Meeting of Patrons and Subscribers to be held, if possible, in the first week of June in each year.

7.—That any elected member of Committee who during the preceding twelve months shall neither have attended any meeting of the Committee, nor have sent any note of apology for absence, shall cease to be a member of Committee, and shall be ineligible on that occasion for re-election.

8.—That a Committee Meeting be held at least once every six months.

9.—That seven form a quorum of the Committee.

10.—That the Mayor of Southampton for the time being be ex-officio President of the Society, and that the other officers of the Society be elected annually by the Committee, and that these officers be one or more Secretaries, a Treasurer, and a Chairman of Committee, who shall preside at Committee Meetings in the absence of the President.

11.—That Sub-Committees be formed for special purposes as occasions arise, and that the officers of the Society be ex-officio members of all Sub-Committees.

12.—That the Records or Works to be published by the Society and the order of their publication be decided by the Committee.

13.—That the prices of the publications of the Society be fixed by the Committee, provided always that the prices charged to members be not more than two-thirds those charged to the general public.

14.—That no publication of the Society be supplied to any member whose contributions or payments are in arrear.

15.—That each year the Committee prepare and present to the General Meeting of Members a report, which shall include (a) an Account of the proceedings of the Society during the year; (b) a Financial Statement of Income and Expenditure of the Society during the year; (c) a Programme of proposals for the following year.

EXPLANATION OF BRACKETS USED IN THIS VOLUME.

Square Brackets [] are used to enclose explanatory glosses.

Round Brackets () are employed when it is necessary to interpolate words in order to make sense or grammar.

INTRODUCTION.

1.—The Southampton Record Society.

The present volume is the first publication issued by the Southampton Record Society. This Society was formed four months ago (June, 1905), under the presidency of the Mayor of Southampton, Col. E. Bance, D.L., J.P., and the patronage of many of the leading citizens of the borough, in order to put into print some of the more important and interesting of the ancient documents that are treasured up in the strong room of the Municipal Buildings. The generous support of the Borough Council, which most kindly and promptly voted forty guineas to the new Society, made it possible for the Committee at once to set the printers to work.

It was decided to begin operations by issuing the Court Leet Records, which exist in a continuous, though not unbroken, series dating from A.D. 1550 to the present time. Various considerations led to this decision: the Court Leet Records are complete in themselves; they are remarkably interesting; they present a vivid picture of one aspect—the communal aspect—of municipal life in old Southampton; they contain items of information concerning most of the leading citizens of the town during the whole period which they cover. Few of the borough documents appeal so strongly both to the student of mediæval institutions and to the general reader.

2.—Contents of the Present Volume.

This first instalment of the Records contains transcriptions of the ten books which have survived to the present day from the period 1550-1577. Of course there were books earlier in date than 1550; for the Court Leet is a survival of an institution of immemorial antiquity. One of the earlier books, that of 1547, is actually referred to in an extant document;¹ but all records anterior to 1550 are lost. So, unfortunately, are eighteen out of the twenty-eight books written during the years 1550-1577. The wonder, however, is not that so many as eighteen have disappeared, but that so many as ten have passed safely through the eras of contempt and neglect which lie between their day and ours. Some special providence must have saved them from the hands of successive generations of municipal office-boys on the search for something combustible wherewith to light the municipal fires. Perhaps the two books of Edward VI.'s time (1550 and 1551) were treasured because of the importance of their evidence concerning the rights of the burgesses in the Saltmarsh: the "Appeal of the Twelve Men" which closes the book of 1551 shows that they were regarded as specially valuable. Similarly the book of 1566, the third of the extant series, may owe its preservation to the fact that it contains a full account of the regulations concerning the placing of cattle on the common lands of the town. The survival of some others of the books may have been due to causes of the same kind; but for the survival of the great majority it is fairly certain that we have to thank not any human prudence or care, but that inexplicable combination of incalculable causes which we in our ignorance denominate pure chance.

3.—The Court Leet.

The court of whose proceedings these books contain the record is one of great antiquity and of much historical interest. In the later middle ages similar courts covered the face of the country, and every man, in theory at least, came within the jurisdiction of some Leet. The term "Leet" (the origin and meaning of which are uncertain) cannot, it is true, be discovered in any document earlier than the thirteenth century, and the functions of the court as they are found in recorded times seem to have been defined and determined as late as Edward II.'s reign, yet there can be little doubt that the court itself is a relic of those manorial and hundred courts which can be traced through the Plantagenet and Norman periods to the earliest era of the English occupation.

I propose, when all the Southampton Court Leet Records shall have passed through my hands, to write as a supplement to the present series of publications as full and detailed an account of the court as I shall be able, and I hope that it may be possible by the help of the valuable information contained in the local documents to throw some light on what is undoubtedly an obscure region of English legal history. It may be well, however, for me here and now to mention a few important facts, the knowledge of which is necessary to a proper appreciation of the significance of the records contained in this volume.

The Court Leet met, as it still meets, once a year on the Tuesday next after Hock-Tuesday, that is on the third Tuesday (or twenty-third day) after Easter Sunday. Since Easter Sunday can fall, according to the inscrutable decrees of the ecclesiastical authorities, on any date from March 22nd to April 25th inclusive, it follows that the "Law-day" or day of meeting of the Court Leet varied from April 14th to May 18th.¹

The place of meeting, till the beginning of the seventeenth century, was "Cutthorn," a circular entrenched mound surrounded by trees, situated on the northern limit of the borough boundaries. In 1617 the Guildhall, over the Bargate, became the more usual place of session. All the "resiants" or persons residing, even temporarily, within the precincts of the town, owed suit to the court, unless, as was the case with the clergy, they had received statutory exemption. In Southampton there was a special class of men called "Free Suitors," who were under an additional obligation to attend. They appear to have been the men who held lands or tenements of the town. Their names were, as a rule, entered in the Court Leet Book and read out at the beginning of the session. Both Free Suitors and ordinary resiants who made default were liable to a fine which in the sixteenth century was generally fixed at threepence per head.

The court was presided over by the Mayor, with whom were associated the Aldermen and Discreets or Councillors of the town. To them the presentments were made by a body of jurors, to whom collectively the name of "The Twelve Men" was commonly given, though in point of numbers there were scarcely ever less than fifteen of them. The duties of these jurors were more akin to those of the "grand" than to those of the "petty" jurors of the present day: the "Twelve Men" were witnesses rather than judges.

4.—The Functions of the Court.

The cases which the jurors presented to the consideration of the Mayor and his brethren were divisible into two large classes.

(a) First, there were serious offences, mainly felonies of one kind or another, which the Court had power to enquire into, but which it had not power to punish. Such offences were treason, murder, manslaughter, burglary, robbery, theft, and arson. For punishment those who had committed these crimes had to be sent to the Quarter Sessions or to the Assizes. The records in the present volume contain no examples of cases of this class. We must not therefore assume that crime was unknown in sixteenth century Southampton, but rather that the frequent Petty Sessions of the Justices of the Peace provided a more prompt and effective method of dealing with it.

(b) The second class of cases which came before the Court consisted of those with which it had full competence to deal—powers not only of enquiry, but also of decision, and, if necessary, of punishment. The following were the principal items of this class:—

- (1) Common Nuisances, such as encroachments on the public lands, interference with the highways or footpaths, pollution of the air, and offences against sanitary regulations generally.
- (2) Evil Persons, whose habits and behaviour threatened danger to the community. Such were haunters of taverns, eavesdroppers, scolds, bawlers, common barrettors, and usurers.
- (3) Trespasses of the nature of affrays, bloodshed, riots, and unlawful assemblies, when the public peace was disturbed.
- (4) Instruments of Justice—the maintenance of stocks, pillory, and cucking-stool, and, in addition, the pound for cattle.

- (5) Trade Regulations, such as the enforcement of uniformity in weights and measures, the maintenance of standard quality of goods, the fixing of prices, the punishment of deceit, the suppression of forestalling, the prevention of combinations of labourers.
- (6) Unlawful Games—the suppression among the lower orders of such games as carding, dicing, skittle playing, bowling, and tennis, which were supposed to interfere with the practice of archery and to provide opportunities for conspiracy.
- (7) Local Bylaws—the enforcement of regulations concerning cattle on the common, watch and ward, repair of walls, paving of streets, building of houses, and so on.

The penalty which was usually inflicted for breach of statute, bylaw, or order of court was the imposition of a fine, but other penalties such as imprisonment or exposure in the pillory were occasionally resorted to. Where fines were employed the rule, if the usual custom of Court Leets was followed, would be that the Mayor and his brethren would decide on the imposition of the fine, while the jurors, or special “affecters” appointed by them, would fix its amount.

The record of the proceedings each year was made in a Court Leet or Law Day Book. A fresh book, roughly constructed by binding together a dozen or so of double sheets of foolscap paper, was used each time. One would judge from differences in style and writing that as much as possible of the book was written out before the meeting of the court: the title, the lists of the Free Suitors, and some of the earlier and regularly recurring entries are frequently transcribed neatly and even elegantly. The later entries are often almost illegible in their hasty irregularity. A ruled margin of about one inch in width was left, and in this were added such items as an indication of the topic dealt with in the entry, the parish in which persons mentioned dwelt, the penalty imposed on offenders.

5.—Contents of Court Leet Book.

The typical Court Leet Book was arranged as follows:—

- (1) The Title, giving date and place of meeting, name of mayor, etc. The Title, as will be seen from a glance at the facsimile given as a frontispiece to this volume, was written in Latin with many abbreviations. To have represented this verbatim et literatim would have required special type; hence in this volume the abbreviations have been extended, and the whole has been printed in current Latin, with a translation appended in a footnote where necessary.

(3) The List of Free Suitors in Latin. To the name was added in many cases a statement of the ground of liability to suit. It has not been thought well to insert these in this volume, as they would have occupied much space and would not, save in exceptional cases, have been of general interest.¹

(3) The Names of the Beadles (Nomina Bidellorum) appointed for the year. There were two for each of the six parishes or wards into which the town was divided,² and in addition one called "The Alderman of Portswood." This latter commonly held office for a good many successive years: thus one Laurence Bonne is named as Alderman of Portswood in all the extant books from 1571 to 1581 inclusive. The other beadles very rarely did duty for more than one year at a time. They were undistinguished men, so their names have not been transcribed into this volume.

¹ The following are representative entries from the 1566 book—the first in which the list of Free Suitors is given:—

"Johes Capelin pro terr q. [quondam] Ric[ard] Capelin patris sui "
 "Nicholaus Capelin pro terr. q. francisci Fleming militis."
 "Heredes Thome Wells pro ter q. monasterii de Netley."
 "Johes Aunde p ter q. Windovers et postes Stephens."

In later books the entries tend to become fuller. For example, in a series of successive records beginning 1573:—

"Petrus Janverin pro uno messuagio sive magno tenemento vel hospicio vocat. le Starr cum pertinent. ac gardin. ac vacua places terr. nup. monastar. Sancti Doins in dicto com. Sutht."

It is in some cases possible by means of these entries to trace the descent of property from one holder to another, though it is not often possible to discover, as it is in the entry just quoted, what particular property is referred to. Thus—

1566. "Franciscus Dawtri Miles."
 1571. "Heredes francisci Dawtrie militis modo Ricus Knighte."
 1572. "Ricus Knight pro terr q. Francisci Dawtrie militis."
 1584. "Heredes Ricardi Knight Ar. pro ter. que fuer. Francis Dawtrie m^o defunct."

As we happen to know from other sources that the lands here referred to, but not described, were the rich and extensive estates of St. Denys Priory, the entries become significant and valuable. If this note should meet the eye of any student of local history who wishes to do a piece of useful research, he might find interesting employment in picking out from these lists of Free Suitors the scattered items of information concerning persons and estates which they contain and in putting them together into a coherent story.

² The parishes or wards were: (1) Holyrood, (2) St. Michael's and St. John's, (3) St. Laurence's, (4) All Saints within the Bar, (5) All Saints without the Bar, (7) Bag Row and East Street.

(4) The Names of the Jurors (Nomina Duodecim).

These were usually given in their Latin form, and the abbreviation "Jur." (juratus) was added to indicate that they had taken the requisite oath. The foreman took the oath first, and by himself; the others followed him in groups of three or more. The jurors were commonly men of substance and note in the town. Their names have been given each year.

(5) Lists of Payments "For Stall and Art."

These fill from seven to twelve pages in most of the books. The phrase "Stall and Art" is not a very familiar one, and it demands further investigation. "Stall" or, in its Latin form, "Stallagium," would appear to indicate a place in which a man could pursue his occupation, while "Art" (Lat. Ars) would seem to stand for the occupation itself. Payments "For Stall and Art" would thus be of the nature of payments for licences to trade. If they were such, their presence in Court Leet Records is somewhat remarkable, and they form one of several indications that in Southampton the relation between the Merchant Guild and the Court Leet was unusually close and intimate.¹

The lists of 1550, 1551, and 1566 (q.v.) give some interesting items of information concerning the occupations of some of the persons assessed and the grounds of assessment. But from 1569 onwards there are few variations from the stereotyped formula, "So-and-so, for stall and art, so-much." Hence for these years it has been thought sufficient to make a tabular summary of the lists, giving with respect to each parish or ward the number of names entered, the variations of payments demanded, and the total amount levied.

(6) The Presentments of the Jurors. These are, of course, by far the most important portion of each book. Most of them—all that contain any point of interest or significance—have been given in extenso. Inverted commas indicate this literal transcription. The remainder (e.g. 1550, §§ 20, 23, 32, 33) have been summarised. No presentments have been entirely omitted; so that this reprint gives a complete index, at least, to the whole of the entries contained in the books with which it deals. Many presentments are, in the MSS., repeated with little or no variation from year to year. Take as an example, the entry concerning the Salthouse, which comes first in all the books from 1573 to 1576 inclusive. To avoid vain re-transcription of such recurring presentments, a system of cross-references has been adopted. The reader who comes upon an entry which is a mere repetition of an earlier entry is referred to the year in which it first appeared; not only to that, however, but also to the last previous occasion on which it was repeated, and to the next subsequent occasion on which it occurs again. Thus a complete historic chain is formed. For instance, in the example given above, anyone who comes upon the presentment concerning the Salthouse, 1575, § 1, will find reference made, not only to the original (1573, § 1,) but, also, to 1574, § 1, and to 1576, § 1. Similarly, the reader of 1576, § 1, is referred to the original (1573, § 1), and, in addition, to 1575, § 1, and to 1577, § 1. By this means an immense economy of space has been effected.

Many of the words found in these sixteenth century documents are archaic or obsolete, e.g. "bucks" for dirty clothes, in 1550, § 72, and "coniger" for rabbit-warren, in 1577, § 8. Professor W. F. Masom, M.A., of the Hartley University College, has very kindly undertaken to prepare a glossary of such terms, which will be issued as a supplement to the Court Leet series of records. In order, however, to make the entries in this present volume intelligible to all, it has been thought well to add, in passing, concise explanatory glosses to the more difficult of the terms. When a synonym has been sufficient, it has been placed in a square bracket [] immediately after the word to be explained; when a longer comment has been necessary, a footnote has been employed. For many of these synonyms and notes I am indebted to Professor Masom, whose wide knowledge of early English dialects has served to throw light on several points which otherwise would have remained obscure.

(7) Lists of the Overseers and the Drivers of the Common follow the presentments. The Overseers were four in number, and were usually drawn from the Leet Jury. Their duty was to see that during their year of office the regulations of the town concerning the Common lands were carried out. The Drivers varied from eight to twelve in number; they were executive officers appointed according to wards, one or two to each. Their task was the lowlier one of marking the cattle placed upon the Common by duly qualified burgesses, and seeing that they did not exceed the number allowed. Many presentments in this volume will be found to relate to them and their duties. It has been thought best to save the space which would have been occupied if these unimportant lists had been transcribed year by year.

(8) The Signatures of the Jurors close the records. They are given in their ordinary English form; in spelling they often present curious variations from the Latin forms found at the beginnings of the books. They afford interesting studies in the handwriting of the period, and it is regrettable that consideration of expense prevents their being given in facsimile year by year.

6.—Topics of Interest in the Present Volume.

Southampton, at the close of the sixteenth century, was a small and somewhat decayed borough. The facts that in 1561 it was able to provide 490 men at arms, and that in 1589 it contained 423 householders, would suggest that its total population was somewhat under 3,000. The Rev. Theodore Wilks, however, in his History of Hampshire (Vol. II., p. 140) says that in 1596 it was 4,200. The great majority of these were grouped within the circuit of its walls. Of the minority, beyond the walls, most were located either in the suburb Above the Bar, or in the street which stretched from East Gate to St. Mary's churchyard. The strength of the town lay in its merchants, but these had fallen upon evil days when, at the beginning of the century, in far distant parts of the world, the advances of the Turks and the discoveries of the Portuguese had closed the mediæval trade routes to the East, and had ruined the commerce of the Levant. Still, even in Elizabeth's reign, the town could boast over sixty vessels, eight of which were of 100 tons burden or more. Many industries, chief among which was serge-making, were carried on in Southampton; but there seems to have been little agriculture. For wheat and for food supply generally, with the exception of meat, the inhabitants depended upon the folk of the surrounding country. Many regulations were made by the Merchant Guild, and enforced by the Court Leet, to prevent the "forestalling, regratting, and ingrossing" of the more important articles of produce. The burgesses, however, reared their own cattle; for within the borough precincts were rich pasture lands. Not only had many of them their own closes, but all of them who performed their communal duty of keeping, in their turn, watch by night and ward by day, had the privilege of placing two beasts upon the common lands in charge of the drivers and the cowherd.

The matters of internal policy and administration which were of prime concern to this little commercial and pastoral community will stand clearly revealed to those who make a study of the presentments contained in this volume. The following seem to me to be the most prominent.¹

- (1) Common Rights. The burgesses were strong in their determination to maintain their claim over the Saltmarsh that lay between the eastern wall of the town and the estuary of the Itchen (1550, § 1). Their chief enemy appears to have been the Warden of God's House, but various persons from time to time tried to enclose and appropriate portions of it. The Brewers also caused trouble by digging clay for their bungholes in the marsh (1566, § 18), while the porters made it a dumping ground for the refuse of the town (1566, § 17). Even more important than the Saltmarsh was the great "Heath" or Common which lay in the north-west portion of the borough precincts. The regulations concerning the pasturing of cattle upon it were numerous and minute (1566, §§ 19-28). The cutting down of trees and bushes was forbidden (1577, § 91). In a similar way encroachments upon the highways were noted and prevented (1573, § 33).

(2) The Highways received constant attention from the Leet Jury.

They saw that the householders, each of whom had to keep in repair the portion of the way in front of his house, did their duty (1550, § 58). They kept vigilant eyes on the drainage of the streets and roads. All the water seems to have been carried off on the surface. One would judge from the entries in this book that each house had its "gutter" running across the causeway into a "bouney" or water course made of wood, or stone, or iron which ran down the street, and that this "bouney" conveyed the washings of the town into various ditches whence they eventually reached, or were supposed to reach, the sea (1573, § 34). The system was very defective; gutters, and bouneys, and ditches constantly needed scouring (1575, § 12). Any unusually heavy fall of rain made the roads dangerous (1575, § 35) or impassable (1576, § 14). If it was difficult to keep the highways and byways dry and in good repair, much more difficult was it to keep them clean and wholesome. Hogs strolled about the streets (1550, § 14); ducks followed their impudent example (1550, § 15); cattle stood there meditatively and thither came men to milk them (1550, § 10); butchers used the streets as slaughter houses (1551, § 38), and into them threw the offal from their shops (1550, § 52). Fishmongers poured forth their fishy water "to the great anoyance of the quenes subjects wth the stinke thereof" (1574, § 74), and women before their doors washed dirty clothes (1550, § 72). Great heaps of refuse grew up in all out of the way places (1569, § 55) and even in such main thoroughfares as Above Bar Street (1571, § 12) and Bugle Street (1571, § 29). The porters were supposed to carry the rubbish of the town to the holes in the Saltmarsh or to the sea; but their work seems to have been done exceedingly badly (1575, § 14). One gets the impression from reading many records that the town was indescribably and incurably filthy, and in a condition so insanitary as to render not only natural, but inevitable, the plagues and pestilences which we know infested it.¹

(3) Defences. The maintenance and repair of the walls (1577, § 43) and the towers (1577, § 51) were matters of frequent consideration. The performance by the burgesses of their duties of watch and ward (1574, § 47) had to be enforced, and the ringing of the nightly watchbells insisted on (1577, § 29). The wells within the town had to be kept clear and in good working order (1571, § 49) so that the inhabitants might not be wholly dependent on the supply of water which came from the conduit-head near Hill. Archery had to be practised, and the butts kept in repair (1566, § 5), so that the town might have its body of trained defenders ready to man the walls and towers. Games which drew men from archery, and which gave low fellows an opportunity to meet together and hatch plots, had to be suppressed (1575, § 76). Stocks needed to be set up in each ward for the chastening of vagabonds (1569, § 9).

(4) Trade Regulations are throughout these books so numerous and so important that one becomes increasingly convinced that in Southampton the connection between the Merchant Guild and the Court Leet was very intimate. Precisely those things which the ordinances of the guild ordered, the decisions of the court enforced.² Trading on the part of non-burgesses was restricted (1550, § 61, and 1551, § 40). Forestalling and kindred offences were suppressed (1550, § 71). The standard of weights and measures was maintained, and year by year long lists of persons found to possess false weights and measures were presented (1566, § 42, 1569, § 57, etc.) Individual trades were regulated. For example, the bakers had to make bread of certain sizes and prices (1569, § 12); the brewers were required to cease from making double-beer (1576, § 88); the butchers were forbidden to kill calves under five weeks old (1573, § 4) or to combine together to enhance the price of meat (1566, § 38); the chandlers were ordered to refrain from making candles of dripping (1550, § 26) and from using the wrong kind of wick (1571, § 70); the coopers were compelled to make casks of certain sizes and to have them officially marked (1566, § 49); the cobblers were warned against using "naughtie slittinge lether" in mending boots (1576, § 68); and similar regulations were issued for brickmakers (1551, § 48), clothworkers (1569, § 15), hackney-men (1577, § 81), hucksters (1571, § 71), porters (1551, § 45), taverners (1571, § 31), tipplers (1550, §§ 53-4), and others.

¹ We have records of devastations made by plague in 1563, 1574, and 1582. In the last year between 400 and 500 people were carried off in six months—a terrible rate of mortality if its population numbered from 3,000 to 4,000.

² The Guild Ordinances are given in Davies's History of Southampton, pp. 139-151. Compare Ord. 30 with 1576, § 79; Ord. 42 with 1550, § 59; Ord. 43 with 1550, § 14. Many other parallels could be noted.

- (6) Miscellaneous. Besides these broad classes of presentments, there are many scattered and miscellaneous entries which are in a high degree interesting and diverting. It is impossible for me to enumerate them here; and needless, moreover, because the search for them will speedily yield its own reward. I will therefore merely mention, by way of example, the presentments concerning apparel (1576, § 76, and 1577, § 98), attendance at church (1575, § 68), and communion bread (1576, § 77).

7.—Conclusion.

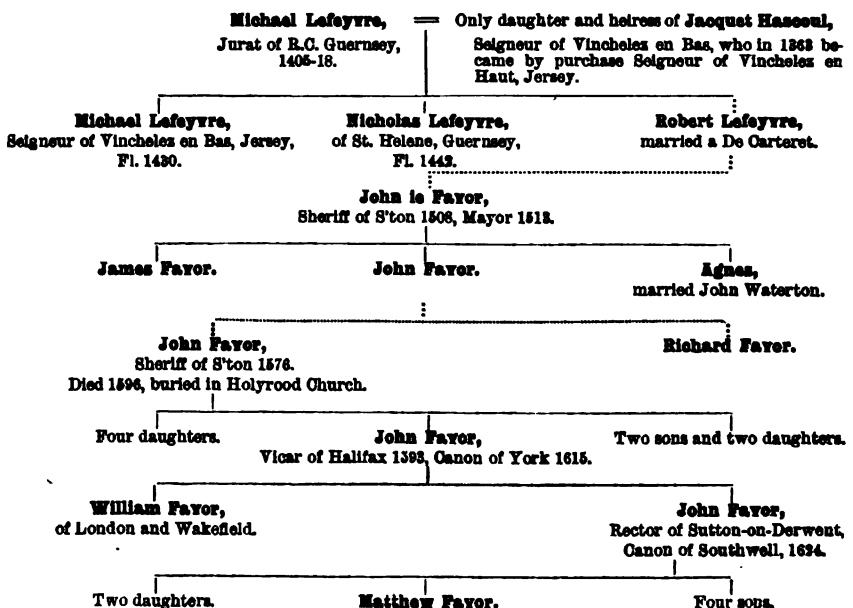

I cannot close these introductory remarks without expressing my consciousness of the inadequacy with which this volume has been edited. Most of the work has been done at scattered intervals of leisure amid the heavy pressure of other and more imperative duties. Had time allowed I should have tried to make my explanatory notes much fuller and more numerous, and I should have endeavoured to gain from the parish registers and other sources some information concerning the old inhabitants of Southampton whose names occur in these pages. I mention this not so much in order to gain consideration for myself as because I hope that the labour and the knowledge of others may supply that wherein I am lacking. I would appeal to all into whose hands this volume may fall to let me know of any sources of information likely to throw light upon its contents. I would ask all who have leisure to undertake such tasks as the hunting of parish registers, the searching of books of statutes, the making of indexes, to communicate with me.

Specially would I request the present representatives of the old Southampton families to supply me with genealogical information concerning their ancestors.¹

It is hoped that, when the volumes—probably from eight to ten—of this Court Leet series are completed, it may be possible to publish, in addition to the essay and the glossary already referred to (see pages x. and xvi.), indexes of topics, and places, and persons, together with maps and plans of the town and neighbourhood. Assistance in the preparation of these will be highly appreciated.

My cordial thanks are due to many kind friends, without whose aid these records could never have been put into print. Specially must I acknowledge my obligation to His Worship the Mayor, Colonel Bance, who both as official head of the town and as Chairman of the Estates Committee has been unfailing in his sympathy and support; to the Town Clerk, Mr. R. R. Linthorne, and the officers of the Municipal Buildings, who have been most generous in granting every facility of access to the documents under their charge; to the Rev. J. Silvester Davies, M.A., the author of the standard History of Southampton, whose admirable work must be regarded as the basis of all future research into local records; to Messrs. Cox & Sharland, the printers, whose skill and care have greatly lightened the task of proof correcting; and last, but not least, to my wife—whose name appears with my own on the title page—upon whom fell the main part of the heavy burden of transcription.

But some of the entries contain supplementary information as to the ground of liability. These are all the more interesting because in the later books (except that of 1551, q.v.) there are few variations from the uniform, monotonous, and unilluminating formula "for stall and art." In this book the entries are all in Latin. The following are selected specimens translated :—

WILLIAM CHRISTMAS, because he is a keeper of hostelage and sells hay (pabulum equinum), and is a brewer of ale, 2/-.

JOHN CHRISTMAS, for stall and art and because he is a clothier, 1/-.

THOMAS HYBBERT, because he is a merchant, 2d.

WILLIAM POTERELL, because he is a butcher, 4d.

ANTHONY HALL, because he is a retailer of ale, 4d.

JERROM GARDENER, because he is a retailer of ale and allows his customers to play at skittles (ludere ad spirulos sive globos), 6d.

DOROTHEA GWYDOTTE, for letting lodgings to strangers, 2/-.

They continue to oppress the Common with sheep, therefore they are fined 5/- each. (Cf. 1550, §§ 2, 3, 4, 5).

3.—William Dawettery and his right of Common.

He oppresses the Common with "a drove of swyne" and also with "horsebeasts and mares," wherefore he is fined 5/-. (Cf. 1550, § 5).

¹ The presentments in this book seem to have been written by a peculiarly illiterate man. The writing is bad, the spelling more than usually erratic, and the composition frequently very loose. Perhaps the trouble into which Thomas Mucklow got himself in the preceding year (cf. 1550, § 83) limited the sphere from which scribes could be chosen.

4.—Regulation for Common.

No burgess to put more than two beasts on the Common. (Cf. 1550, § 7, and 1566, § 22).

5.—Mr. Baker's Cows Milked in the Street.

"Itm we p^resentt that Mr. baker ys mayeds duthe mylke hys kyene in the strette tymes w^ott nomber, wherfor wee fynde hym to be amersyde w^t the leste [at least] $\frac{3}{4}$ & for every tyme so takkyne as yt ys afyrmyde in the 10 artykyll off the for sayde buke 4d." (Cf. 1550, § 10, and 1566, § 29).

6.—Thomas Fuller's Encroachment.

He is to pay 6/8 for encroachment on Common as agreed at the last Law-day. (Cf. 1550, § 12).

7.—Salt Bitches and Hogs in the Streets.

(a) SALT BITCHES IN THE STREETS. Article of last year re-affirmed. (Cf. 1550, § 13).

(b) HOGS IN THE STREET. Article of last year re-affirmed (cf. 1550, § 14). The jury complain that the "masters of the town" persist in keeping hogs in the town, & so set "an yelle insampelle to the reste of the holle towne," for the common people say "why shulde nott we kepe hoggs who are poore as well as they who are ryche." (Cf. 1550, § 14 and 1566, § 30).

8.—Hucksters for regratting the Market.

	200		£5 . 9 . 10

Of the two hundred entries in these lists of assessments for "Stall and Art" the majority are devoid of information. But in eighty-three cases the occupations of the persons assessed are given. It may be of interest to enumerate these recorded occupations, although the fact that so many remain unrecorded makes the enumeration quite valueless as a basis of historical inference.

(Cf. 1551, § 22, and 1571, § 49).

3.—The Watercourse near Gosling lane to be scoured.

"Item we present owen symones hathe not mendyd the watter cowrse of hys close by goslen lane as he had in comandement the last yere, wherefore he hathe forfeitd hys payen w^{ch} was 10/- & now be yt comandyd vnto thomas fulleres wydo to escowre the sayd watter cowrse on thyssyd y^e feast of saynct bartyllmew the apostyll vpon payen of 20/-." (Cf. 1569, § 53).

4.—The Ditch near Padwell to be scoured by Sir Francis Dawtrey.

"Item we p^resent Syr francys Dawtre Knyght hathe not escowryd hys dyche next adjoynyng to padwell wherefore he hathe forfeitd 13/4, be yt therefore comandyd vnto hym to escowre the same on thyssyd the feast of St. bartyllmew y^e apostell next vpon payen to Losse 26/8, we have dyveres tymes complayned & no Reformacyon." (Cf. 1569, § 20).

5.—The Archery Butts not Maintained.

"We have dyveres tymes p^resentyd that the inabytants have not there bowes & arrowes acordyng to the statewtes, & allso that the butts are not mayntained & Reparyd, wherefore we desyer yet once agayen a Reformation herein may be hadde." (Cf. 1551, § 18, and 1569, § 3).

6.—Back-of-the-Walls to be laid with Gravel.

"We p^resentyd the last yere that the inabytants in y^e est syde of the towen should mend the wey between there gardenes & the towen walles wth gravell that men myght passe tha^t way on fowte in the wynter tyme, we desyer Reformacyon therin may be hade owt of hand for at wynter yt wylbe to latte to Reforme y^e same from the est gatte to gods howse gatte, that every Inabytant do make agaynst there grownd & garden on thyssyd the feast of saynct John baptyst vpon payne of 10/-." (Cf. 1569, § 21).

7.—Highway from Houndwell Cross to the Brickhouse to be mended and the Ditches Scoured.8.—Beer brewed in Houses contrary to Statute.

"We p^resent tha^t m^r. wylmot, thomas awsten, Raynold howse dowthe brew bere in there howses contrary to the statewt, wherefore we desyer Reformacyon therein to be had."

9.—Fence between the grounds of Peter Janverin and Thomas Sanders.

"We p^resent that peter Janvryn owght to fence thomas sanderes garden next ajoynnyng to hys grownd on thyssyde the feast of Saynct bartyllmew y^e apostell next vpon payen to forfet 6/8."

10.—Fence between the grounds of Peter Janverin and Richard Etner.

"We p^resent tha^t peter Janvren owght allso to macke the fence between hym & Rychard Etner, w^{ch} ys all Redy made by Rychard Etner wherefore we dow award tha^t peter Janvryn shall pay Rychard Etner toward hys chargys $\frac{3}{4}$ & peter Janvren hereafter to mayntayen the Same hedge as hys owen, p^rovided allwayes tha^t yf the sayde hedge dow not prosper to be a Lawfull fence tha^t the sayd peter shall allwayes mayntayen a Lawfull fence."

11.—General Orders for Fencing.

"the cawse why we have p^resentyd as aforesayd ys for tha^t we cannot fynde the contrary onlesse the enclosyng of grownds agayen [adjoining] comen or hyghwayes, & devydyng of grownds by the Land Lord, and Syche Shall follo the orderes y^e mayntayneng of there gvtters y^e the east the west & y^e sowth to mayntayen the north, exsept yt be abowt the castell w^{ch} ys Rownd & thys order in that place but as yt hathe bene acostomed."¹

¹ The meaning of this regulation is that in a row of houses running east and west each person was to keep in order one fence or gutter, viz., that on the west side of his ground: similarly in a street running north and south, each occupier was to be responsible for the "defence" of his northern boundary.

12.—Thomas Hoskins to scour his Ditch at Caneshot.

"Be yt comanded to thomas hoskins that he eskowre his diche at caneshote and pile [make up] his bank that yt may not encroche vpon the highway as yt hath don on thisside bartilmew tyde vpon paine of 10/-" (Cf. 1569, § 2).

13.—Houndwell Conduit and Wiett's Well to be repaired.

"Item we p^rsente that the condite hedd in howndewell felde is decayed and have neade of reparacons, and also wietts well ys not fensyd but that the catall fall Into yt and be in dangere of their lyves." (Cf. 1569, § 26).

14.—The Tower near Mr. Crook's needs Repairing.15.—The Bulwark near God's House Tower needs Repairing.

"Item the bulwork by goodshowse tower, to be amended In the tymberwoke."

16.—The West Quay needs Repairing.

"Item the pyleing and ropeing of the weste caye ys to be also amended."

17.—The Depositing of Rubbish on the Saltmarsh.

"Item that the soyle caryed into the Saltemarshe maye be alweyes caste Into the holes¹ w^r nede is, and not throun vpon the grasse as yt is and hathe bine, and that ther maye be men appointed to pointe the carters w^r he shall ley yt, and that yt may alweyes forthewith be put in the placs nedefull as yt shalbe appoynted, and that the carters cary none to howndwell pitts in the som^er time." (Cf. 1569, § 74).

18.—The Digging of Clay by the Brewers on the Saltmarsh.

"Item be yt comanded to ev^{ere} bere brewer that digeth claye in salte m^rshe forth wth to fill all that they have herefore diged, and hereaft^er to dige not excepte they forthwth fill the hols they didge wth earth or donge vpon payne to forfeit ev^{ere} suche offence 3/4." (Cf. 1569, § 6).

¹ Clay was taken from the Saltmarsh by brewers, who used it to fill the bungholes of their casks. The holes in the ground thus left had to be filled up with the refuse of the town. Professor Mason suggests an interesting reference to Hamlet V., 1—"To what base uses may we return, Horatio! Why may not imagination trace the noble dust of Alexander, till he find it stopping a bung hole? . . . as thus: Alexander died, Alexander was buried, Alexander returneth to dust, the dust is earth, of earth we make loam; and why, of that loam, whereto he was converted, might they not stop a beerbarrel?"

19.—Cattle for the Common to be delivered to the Cowherd.

"ffirste that the Kyne by theire own^{er}s or there s^{er}vants be deliv^{er}de to the cōward that he maye know the names of ev^{er}e man that hathe eny Kine or horses to goo in the comyn." (Cf. 1550, § 65.)

20.—Order for the Cowherd concerning the Collecting of Cattle.

"Item that when the Kine goo to the comyn heth [heath] then to be deliv^{er}de to the cowards by 6 of the cloke in the morneynge, and that the Kyne be mylked and deliv^{er} to the cowarde at hownd-well crosse by 6 of the cloke at nyght as maney as shall goo to the hethe, and that the coward shall alweyes answor to the owners as maney Kine as shalbe lackeng by his neclegence and defalte."

21.—Order for the Cowherd concerning the Milking of Cattle.

"Item that the cowards shall alweyes bringe the Kyne to be mylked to suche place and plac as he shalbe appoynte him to bringe them to."

22.—Order for Cowherd concerning number of Cattle and payments from Burgesses.

"Item that the coward take not of eny man above two beasse, and that ev^{er}e man that puteth eny cowe to hime in the sum^{er} shall paye his charge as well in winter as in som^{er} excepte he sell away his Kowe." (Cf. 1551, § 4).

23.—Order concerning Cattle too late for Cowherd.

"Item yf eny Kine be not deliv^{er}de to the coward by the howres foresaid, then the coward to departe at his owre wth such as he hath redy, and thene the residue which be not deliv^{er}de him by the owre be not redy then, to be drevē to the comyn by the own^{er}s of them or by theire s^{er}vants and theare at the heth deliv^{er}de to the coward, and yf eny be neglygente in the deliv^{er}y of theire Kine contrary to this ordere and suffreth the Kine to strey In the strets or lanes and do eny harme the ownere to answere to the damage, and yf they doo but strey into the lanes the own^{er} to forfet 2d. for ev^{er}e suche defalte, and ev^{er}e man to paye for his horsbeasse that go in eny comyns as much as for the Kine."

24.—Drivers and Overseers of the Common appointed.

(1) AS DRIVERS OF THE COMMON eight men are appointed, two from each of the four wards.

(2) AS OVERSEERS OF THE COMMON four of the Leet Jurors are appointed, viz., John Ayles, Thomas Dingley, Thomas Bucke, William Singleton. (Cf. 1569, § 8).

25.—Orders for the Drivers of the Commons.

"ffyrste yt is agreed that the drevers shall ev^{re} 14 dayes at the leaste Vew the comyns abowte the towne to see yf eny do surcharge the same, as yf eny townes man have above the numbere of two beasse or that there be eny strang beasse theare, and yf there be to bringe theme to the pownde . . . and the driv^{ers} to take for ev^{re} beaste soo takne and pounded 4d." (Cf. 1569, § 8).

26.—All Cattle put on the Common to be marked.

"Item that none put eny cowe or horse, gealdeinge, mare or colde into the comyn before they are burned with the towne m^{ar}ke p^{re}pared therfor vpon payne to forfeite to the dryer 6d., and to the mainteyance of the geats w^{ch} inclose the comyn other 6d."

27.—Drivers to be fined for Mis-marking Cattle.

"Item the saied drev^{ers} to forfeit for ev^{er} tyme they shall mysset the saied m^{ar}ke or mys place hit, 12d."

28.—The Town Mark for Cattle.

"the m^{ar}ke ys to be sette vpon the nere buttocke or lege behinde and the 'H' to be sette as this m^{ar}ke in the m^{ar}gente is." (Cf. 1577, § 94).

The following is a fac-simile of this entry with the marginal mark:—

LSI For the white mark to be putte to the same as Blackmark or Grey Blackmark and Grey and Grey Blackmark no 12d in the for the same

29.—Cows not to stand in the Street.

This entry is substantially the same as 1550, § 10, q.v. Cf. also 1551, § 5.

30.—Hogs in the Streets, Quays, etc.

"Item that none suffer eny hogs to go at large vpon eny of the Cayes [quays] or vpon the towne ditches or wth in the walls of the saied towne or In salte m^rshe vpon paine to furfette for ev^{ere} hogs soo founde for ev^{ere} tyme soo offending 4d." (Cf. 1551, § 7, and 1571, § 62).

31.—Hogs in Houndwell and Hoglands.

"Item none (i.e. no hogs) goo in howndwell ffilde or hoglonde or mawdelin ffilds but only In the tyme of harvas aftere the corne is cutte and they Ringed or peged and yooked, vpon like payne."

32.—Who may put Cattle on the Common? Only Householdors who pay Watch and Ward.

"Item that non put eny catall Into the comyn w^{ho} is not a howseholder and paye watche and warde vpon payne to furfet for ev^{ere} tyme so offendinge 2/- to be devided as aforesaid. And that ev^{ere} man shall paye for ev^{ere} geldeinge & mare as for a kow."

33.—God's House Ground should not be enclosed before Lady Day.

"Item we p^rsente that the comyne tyme of Inclosment ys at o^r lady daye the annunciation and that godds howsse ought not to enclose theire gronde before the tyme of Inclosement w^{ch} is as aforesaid and that they Inclose before that daye w^{fore} we desire redresse therof accordinge to thord^{er} of the towne."¹

34.—Regulations concerning Sale of Butter in Winter.

"Item for as muche as we finde that thengrossenge of buttre by the Ingrossers & powderars² therof vnder collore to selle yt at wintere ys a grete hynderence to all thinhabitants Riche & pore for by theire Ingrosenge in the begynnyng of the yere (they) kepe vppe the p^rce & soo all Sylteng [salting] tyme tyll toward wintere that butter wexith scarce agen, w^{fore} we require that ther maye be noo butter solde owte of the ma^rkette & thear

¹ This interesting entry introduces us to a long-standing dispute between the Corporation of Southampton and the Warden of God's House. For details, cf. Davies's History of Southampton, pp. 52-54. The dispute had been settled by a compromise in 1504. The land in question was to be enclosed to the exclusive use of God's House from the Purification (Feb. 2nd) to Lammas (Aug. 1st). For the remainder of the year (Aug. 1st to Feb. 2nd) it was to be Common to the people of Southampton. From this entry it would appear that the Leet Jury were trying to extend their claim to Common from Feb. 2nd to March 25th.

² Powderer—a person who powders butter, that is sprinkles it with salt; so "powder tub" is the vessel in which meat is salted.

lette the contry selle yt as dre as they can & then no man take vpon him to selte [salt] eny more butter then shalbe for his necessary & resonable p^rvision and that by the Judgement yf yt require of m^r mayre and his bretherne accordinge to the number of his howseholde & that noo butter so Ingrossed vnder collere of butter for theire howsse be solde at winter opynly or previly Ingrose [wholesale] or Retayle vpon payne of $\frac{3}{4}$ for ev^{er}y pounce so solde the halfe to the towne & to thother that p^rsente yt provided alwey that yt shalbe Lawfull to all men that will bye buttere 30 myles owte of Suthampton to Retayle yt so they bringe w^t them a sufficient Testimoniall where & of whome they bought yt & also doo ffrome tyme to tyme make m^r maire prevy of all the butter soo bought & at the time of retayleinge of butter how moche he hath to retayle for the wintere."

35.—All the Taverners have sold Wine contrary to the Statute.

The jurors ask for redress.

36.—Unlicensed Tipplers.

"Iteme as far as we cane vnderstonde these whoes names are vndere & Named doo tyle wthowte licence, that is to sey John Manfride, Roberte bedham, willm foleat, william hobbes, John davy, Nicholas Roche, William Stevens, in Sanct Michaels & Sancts John warde.

"John Beve in alhalond [All Saints'] p^rissh Clerke the mason of est strete, John thorne brewer."

37.—Unlawful Games.

"More [moreover] for that onlawfull games as boleng [bowling] at the Kings orchard coytres [quoits] at the west caye is comynly vsed and divers tymes p^rsented and no remeded we desire s^che soo that and all othere unlawfull games maye be made accordeinge to the statute. And that Rosse maye be sente for to answor yow whate playars at bowles play ther and so to take ordere to him accordeinge." (Cf. 1569, § 41).

38.—The Butchers combine to enhance the Price of Beef and so cause various inconveniences.

"Item the pore complayne to us that the buchers sell ther meate derer than they dyd at ester, and that at mooste tymes ther is noo beeffe for them to take holm (as vpon satersdaye the 4th of maye by noone thee was not one morsell of beaffe to be solde), and as yt semeth to us the bowchars beinge assured none shall hurte them and for one daye the strang bowchers mooste comynly bringe but lytill beefe, And then goo o' bowchars, 2 or 3 or more to an ox or stere, by the w^{ch} they moostelyke agree to sell at one p^{ri}ce w^{ch} agrement yf yt be so is contrary to a statute the penaltie w^{of} is as we r^{em}ember £10, and then they have ther calves now moost comynly to furniss the m^{ar}ket when the beeffe is gone & hereby the p^{ri}ce is not only w^{ow}te spedy remedy lyke to encreyse but the chandelere to have but small store of talow to make candells wth, w^{fore} as we have a ffree markette soo we desire all victulers may come and sell theire victualls ffrely, as they have don for theire is more spokin of this then we have writen."

39.—The Butchers to cast their Offal into the Sea, and not at the end of Thomas Astin's garden.

"Item we p^{re}sent the bowchers above the barre or ther s^{er}vants do comynly caste the bludde & garbage of the catall they kylle at thende of thomas astins gardin vpon the banke as men goe to hill-ward to the grete anoyance as well of the same Thomas as all other that passe by, wherefore be yt comanded that they avoyd [cease doing] the same vpon warneing to them geven and caste no more theare but Into the see, w^r yt maye anoy no man & that vpon payne of 3/4 to ev^{ere} of them for ev^{ere} tyme they soo offende."

40.—The Town lacks Standard Weights.

"We ffinde that ther lack in the Awdit howsse certen weaght w^{by} we cannot soo Justely try the weights of others as we mought do, for we were drevn to borow weightts of other men to try theme by whiche weightts we knownot w^r they be trew or falce ffor lacke o' standerd, & therof [therefore] we desire they may be p^{ro}vided w^t all convenient sped & that the weights for weying of bred be also p^{ro}vided in brasse."

41.—Orders for the weighing of Bottells of Hay.

This is a long and rambling entry. The Jury say that they have called into their presence "Hugh Foster who sayth he hath bne sworne to be heywinder in Suthampton." They charge him to see that bottells and half-bottells are made by weight only. All innkeepers are to have "beame scales" and weights ready at their doors, but their bottells of hay are to be made, not by themselves, but only by the "sworne officers."

42.—False Weights and Measures.

Nineteen people enumerated as selling bottells of hay too light, or as having false weights and measures. They are fined, apparently on no general principle, from 2d. to 2/-.

43.—Stronger Scales and Heavier Weights to be provided at the Weigh-house.

"Item In the way howsse the beme ys to weake to wey eny greate weight as a botte of currans or pipe of proynes [prunes] w^{fore} men be dryvne at several tymes to take them at a venture or to breke them and wey them in p^{cells} at ther howses, and lykewise ther laketh weight to wey yt, further div^{em} of them are to light, yt maye therefore please yew to provide a sufficient beame Jaredyngs [yardarms] wth skales and weights accordeinge."

44.—"The Place where the Masts lie" to be Cleansed.

"Item we p^{esente} that the place w^r the masts lye ys moast onhonistely vsed to the grete anoyance of all the comers by, be yt comanded to thinhabitants there abowts to make yt cleane on thisside wittesonetide next."

45.—Filth cast over the Walls by the Porters and others.

"Item we p^{esente} that the porters and Maister bowears [makers of bows] wth others have caste the donge of the stables ov^{er} the walls w^r the Backe was wante to stonde, be yt comonnded that they Redde yt away before the saied feste, & to caste no more theare vpon payne to furfette for ev^{ere} tyme so doinge 3/4."

46.—Mr. Edward Wilmot to move a Bank of Gravel.

"Iteme be yt comanded to Mr. Edward wilmot that he caste the banke off gravell that come ote of his diche Abrode in the strete or in thother side of the strete soo that the water may Rone owte of the highway into hys dyches & that on thissid the saied feaste vpon payne of 10/- (in the wyndmill lane)." (Cf. 1569, § 22.)

47.—Salt bitch in the Street.

"Item we p^{esint} that steven Monsanger have sufferde hys Sawte byche to goe in the strete contrarye to the orders of the towne wher ffor we do amerse hym in 12d."

48.—John Jackson

for a similar offence fined 12 pence.

49.—The Coopers to mark all their Casks.

“that yt may plesse yow^r worsshypes to calle before you all the cowpares & to geve them in comandement that they put there marke Every man vpon the barelleles & hogsedes & vyrkynes [firkins] that they macke, as the Statewte hathe p^rovidyd in that behalfe tha^t yf the caske be fownd in defawte of there messeres tha^t they owght to contayen, they may be amersyd acordyng to there desarts, for we fynd caskes fawtye & for tha^t they are not marked we canot tell who we shall amerse.”

50.—Sir Francis Dawtrey oppresses the Common.

Four lines of this entry are scored through. From what remains it appears that Sir Francis Dawtrey by his herdsman sent to the “Comyn Heth” twenty or twenty-four head of cattle contrary to the orders of the town and that he refused to remove them. The Jurors “desire reformation.” (Cf. 1569, §§ 28 and 29.)

51.—St. Mary’s Street to be repaired.

“Item we p^resent that the highe wey ffrom Thomas Cortemyll howsse to Mr. Knight howsse in sant maris strete ys very fowlle & deape at winter, & therefore we desire yt maye be amended by them that ought to make yt, upon payne of 3/4 to be paid by ev^ery man that ought to helpe amende the wey & dothe not we meane accordeinge to the statute.”

52.—Mr. Nicholas Capelin to scour his Ditch.

“Item be yt comannded to mr. nicolas Capelin to Redde away the earthe caste owte of his diche into the strete wthin este gate that the water may avoyde owte of the highway Into his diche & on thisside mydsom^er vpon payne of 10/-.”

53.—The Town Porters and their Evil Habits.

“Item for as moch as the porters be moche complained vpon for that they geve not theirre attendance & do not there dutie to the m^erchants & suche as vse to Lade carts in the towne, theirre hathe byn like complaints before now & ordere for redresse w^{ch} bok we have not, w^fore we desire yt maye be redressed accord-inge to yo^r good discessions. And forther yt complained that they will have theire dutie [dues or fees] for Ladeinge of the carts though they syt at alehousses whiles the carte is laden by the carters & beside geve them evill language, w^{ch} cawseth the towne to have an evill name, yt was once ordered that yf they w^r required to lade the carts & that they absented themselves in alehowses or such like soo that the Cart^{er} did lade the carte the porters shulde have nothin for the ladeinge." (Cf. 1551, § 45.)

54.—Fishermen for fishing with nets.

"Item we p^{re}sente that the ffisher men wthin o^r liberties doo ffishe wth netts contrary to the statute w^{by} the ffry is distroyed, wherefore we desire hastie remedy acordeinge to the same acte" (28 Car. I).

55.—Assault and Affray.

(a) "Item we p^{re}sente that Andrew stove hath made asalte and Affray vpon Robert Hews man (?) wth a [?] broke his hedde & drew blud of him."

(b) "Item that John thorne made asawte and affray vpon his brother thom's & w^t a dag^{er} as yt is saied drewe blode of him."

56.—Unlawful Shooting by Doctor Martin's man.

¹ The office of Clerk to the Market seems to have been conferred by royal charter 1401. The office carried with it the right to hold the assizes of bread and beer, to assay weights and measures, and generally to regulate goods coming into or sold in the market of the borough.

² Magna Charta (3 Hy. III., c. 25) had established one measure of cloth for the Kingdom. Officers called Aulnagers were appointed to enforce the observance of this law. Their duties were fully defined by a statute of 1328. The office continued with various modifications of function until 1700, when it was abolished by Act of Parliament. (11 and 12 W. III., c. 30).

³ The first compulsory poor law was the statute of 1562 (5 Eliz., c. 3). Up to that time poor relief had been a matter left entirely to charity.

19.—William Nutshaw's encroachment upon the Queen's Highway.

"Item we p^{re}sent tha' will^m nutshawe hathe not taken vp his hedge nor fylled his ditche wth he hathe encrochid vpon y^e queenes highe way as yt was gyven hym in Comaundement, whearefore he hathe forfaightid 10/-, be yt Comaunded vnto hym tha' y^e same be redressid beefore y^e feast of S^t Mighell next vpon payne of 20/-." PRESENTMENTS.1.—The Salt House at the West Quay.

“Item we p^rsent that wheras ther is a salt howsse Kepte at the west Keye w^{ch} is a great annoyans to the comonwelth of this country for that yt is a great devower of wood, & hathe byne p^rtly occason of the great derth therof, w^{ch} salt ther made is allso transportid beyond the seas as we arr informyd wherof we praye redresse." ¹ (Cf. 1574, § 1).

2.—The Butts to be Repaired.

"Item we p^rsent the butts in the Castell & vppon the towne dyche arre vnrepayryd w^{ch} we desire maye be repayryd out of hande for that the sumer is come on & (they) by the statute ought to be repayrid." (Cf. 1571, § 67, and 1574, § 2).

3.—Mr. Lambert's Bails, Road and Ditches.

"Item we p^rsent that Mr. lambert hath not set vppe his raylls nether amendid the heyghe waye by his dyche next salt marche nether escowrid his dytche as he was comaundid & bound to amend the Laste yeare nether hath he amendid his dytche betwyxt his grounde & the docke for that his said dytche fyllyth the marshe wth water, for lacke of the Lacke of rep^ring & amending therof, wherfor he hath forfeitid his payne of 33/4—in Leek sorte be yt comanndit vnto the said Mr. Lambert to sett vppe the said raylls, amend the sayd waye & dytche on thisside the feast of St. James next vppon the Leeke payne." (Cf. 1574, § 3).

4.—Butchers and the Killing of Calves.

"Item we p^rsent that all the butchers wthin this towne hath kyllid calves contrary to the statut² wherfor ev^{ry} of them hathe forfeitid the paynes contaynid in the statut the consideracon wherof we refer to yo^r wo'shipps." (Cf. 1574, § 4).

5.—The Lane from East Gate to God's House to be repaired.

"Item we p^rsent that the Lane & especially about the gate of the lane Leading from east streat to the Quenes orchard & to godes howse ys very yll & depe in the winter tyme & wher yt was geven in comaund^m the laste yeare to repayer the same vppon payne of 3/4 a pece to ev^{ry} one w^{ch} did not repayer the same they have forfeitid ther payne, wherfore be yt now comaundid that the same be repayrid one thissid mydsomer next vppon payne of forⁿ of 6/8 to ev^{ry} of them that ought to repayer the same." (Cf. 1574, § 12).

¹ It is evident that the salt was manufactured by distillation of sea water and that much wood was consumed in keeping up the necessary fires.

² I.e. under five weeks old.

6.—Wood and Coal to be officially measured.

"Item we p^resent that wheras we have often tymes Requestid that the size of talle wood faggetts & byllats¹ w^{ch} the mesure of the sacks of colles might be lookid vnto we do se & here ev^{er}y daye & yeare the wood worsse markid then other, and the colle sacks of Lesse messure, for redresse wherof (we) thinke good that ther maye be yerely chossen vewers & sizers of wood & meserers of colle sacks, when yt comethe to the towne eyther by water or Lande, therfor by yo^r discreson." (Cf. 1571, § § 9 and 10; 1573, § 43; and 1574, § 5).

7.—The late Mr. Wilmot's Ditch in Windmill Lane.

"Item we p^resent that those that dwellethe in the farme Late Mr. willmots viz. Edmond carpenter or others ther inhabiting have not as yet clensid nor pyllid the dytche at caneshute in wyndmill Lane according as they were comandid the Last yeare, wherfore they have forfeitid ther payne w^{ch} is 26/8. And be yt allso comaundid to thosse that have the howsse or grounde ther to repayere the same dytche & to throwe downe the bancke into the middell of the heyghe waye & gravell the same in suche sorte that the wat^{er} maye have the corse into the said dytche out of the sayd waye one thissid mydsomer next vppon payne of 30/-." (Cf. 1569, § 22, and 1574, § 31).

8.—The Bouney near the same also to be repaired.

"Item we farther pressent that wher the bouney [gutter] beinge in the highe waye beyond caneshute w^{ch} ought to be mayntaynd & repayrd by them that holdeth the same farme & ground ys broken & in much decaye by reason wherof the waye ther is very foule & much decayed, be yt comanndid to them sufficiently to repayer & amend the same between this & mydsomer next vpon payne of 10/- & to make a dytch in his ground to bringe the watter ought of the said ground to the said bony." (Cf. 1574, § 27).

9.—The Ditches near Padwell and Rockstone Lane.

"Item we p^resent that wher [whereas] the diches aboute padwell & rogeden Lane arre not escourid w^{ch} is anoyans to the highwaye, be yt comanndid to those that ought to repayer & escour the same sufficiently to escouer & repayer the same one thissid

NOTE.—Ten of these Free Suitors are named later in the book as having made default. They include “Walter Lambert for St. Marys” and “Geordge Paulet Esquier, essoin p. Robert Moor.” At the bottom of the list is added another name, viz. “Thomas Hibby quia fecit def: vis: ffraunc: pleg: IIId.” (i.e. Thomas Hibby because he has made default of frankpledge 3d.) This probably means that he was a young man just of age who should have taken his oath of allegiance to the queen, but had failed to do so.
